Prerequisite Testing

for TESOL

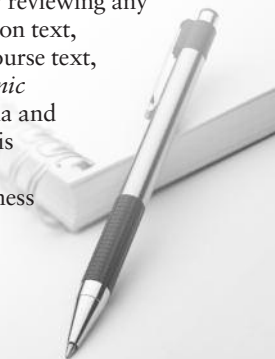

Wednesday, August 12, 2009

5:30-8:30 pm

Prerequisite courses are required for certain TESOL courses. If you pass these pretests, you will be exempt from these courses. The Standard English Usage test may be taken only once; if you do not pass the test, you must enroll in the class.

There are four sections on the pretest for Standard English Usage: 1) labeling words according to their parts of speech; 2) identifying the name of the tense of a given verb phrase; 3) choosing between standard and nonstandard usage (e.g., pronoun form, subject-verb agreement); 4) explaining the reasons for your choices in section 3. You may prepare for the exam by studying any basic grammar/usage text. If you don't pass the test and are required to take the class, the text you will need to purchase is English Fundamentals (Emery), available online or at the Extension Business Center.

The pretest for Fundamentals of Writing allows the candidate to demonstrate his or her competence in the basic patterns of American-style essays. You may prepare for the exam by reviewing any basic composition text, including the course text, Writing Academic English (Oshima and Hogue), which is available at the Extension Business Center.

TOEFL/TOEIC EXAM PREPARATION COURSES

Are you a non-native speaker of English planning to attend an American college or university? Is your TOEFL or TOEIC score standing in the way? Our TOEFL/TOEIC review courses are just what you need to help bring up your score! See our course listings on page 67

For more information, e-mail english@ucx.ucr.edu or call (951)827-4346.
